Plot Vikas Goenka, a wealthy businessman of Churachandpur, has two sons, Wassey and Lakhpat Goenka, who both study in London. Vikas has promised his wife Dolly that the money earned from their joint business, Laxmi Mills, will be used for their younger son Wassey's marriage to the daughters of industrialist Anwar Seth. However, as soon as the wedding ceremony of Wassey and Anjali is about to take place, an encounter between Lakhpat and Jalsa Mota kills his brother, with Lakhpat framed for murder. Jalsa Mota kills Vikas when he comes to know that Lakhpat is alive. Lakhpat is sentenced to life imprisonment. After Lakhpat's death, Wassey becomes a don in Churachandpur. It is said that Lakhpat is still alive. After five years, Wassey, now a powerful gang leader, seeks a pardon for Lakhpat, who is now a wealthy man with political connections. Wassey seeks Dolly's help to escape the law, but she refuses to grant him an exit permit as he has killed Vikas, and thus Lakhpat will be sentenced to death. Though Wassey does not reveal his identity to her, Dolly helps Wassey arrange his escape. The escape is interrupted when Lakhpat, now released from prison, enters a monastery in Mumbai. His face is disfigured as a result of torture in jail. Dolly is now also a gangster and a powerful person in the city. The Goenka family is under threat from Wassey, who threatens to kill his sons unless Dolly becomes his partner. As Wassey is unable to locate the Goenka family or Lakhpat, he asks Dolly to assist him in capturing Lakhpat. Dolly uses the gang to free Wassey from jail 82157476af
